Best Practices in Teaching Research: Blending Pedagogical Techniques and Smart Technologies

June 1-3, 2017

Cagayan de Oro City, Philippines

Research requires complex skills. It is a combination of procedural skills as well as critical and strategic skills. Students must be able to develop proficiency in all of these areas while integrating all of these skills. However, students have a difficulty of possessing these skills as many of research assignments were easily answered through Wikis, blog sites, search engines and gray literature. As this has been normal practice to them, students might have a false assumption about their research knowledge and abilities. Thus, teachers must blend pedagogical techniques (critical and strategic skills) and smart technologies (procedural skills) in the teaching of research.

The Asian Association for Academic Integrity, Inc. with SEC Registration No. CN201619469 invites you to the Best Practices in Teaching Research: Blending Pedagogical Techniques and Smart Technologies on June 1-3, 2017, Cagayan de Oro City, Philippines.
